

A SATIRIZE PROJECT

In today's society, the person type greatly influences the character and personality of an individual in terms of his/her activities. For example, a sports star has such a hectic lifestyle which will involve remaining competitive in the sport he/she is involved in and at the same time convincingly playing to the best of his/her ability. They have to set aside time in their busy schedules so that they engage in 'co-curricula' activities such as helping the less fortunate or setting up academies to promote their sport. It is funny since the normal persons' co-curricular activities is their source of income. People engage in playing football, baseball, golf, handball and others as a part-time activity or to relaxation. The society perceives them as celebrities and some as heroes, especially those who have exceptional capabilities in the sport they are engaged in. Unfortunately, some get carried away by the new found status and they are not in a position to cope with it. They end up wasting themselves with drugs or other undesirable and anti-social behaviours. However, research has shown that sports stars are the ones who have facilitated most charity missions since time immemorial. I guess they do this since the talent of most of them is in time frames which normally come with age. This is unlike a talent like music where one can be perfect even with old age. One's physique is not so vital.

On the other hand, there are politicians who are basically concerned and engaged in the affairs and running of governments. Politics becomes their form of profession. This is normally through political parties. Politicians have been criticised often because of their short sightedness and application of double standards. They are experienced in the science of running a government be it for selfish reasons or for the greater good of the public. They spice up the politics of a country, and their nature is amusing. This is in the way they criticize one another today, but tomorrow they become close allies. They do not have enmity among themselves. Provided their interests are the same, they can work together effectively. The society has become very sceptical about them due to this. Their words are not taken seriously until action is done. They have a perfect way of twisting what they may have said so as to suit their needs. For this reasons, a politician has to be flexible in his/her thinking as well as deeds. They can justify the unthinkable no wonder the public has low levels of trust unto them.

Priests, on the other hand, have also changed rapidly especially in the 21st century. Many religions have turned priesthood into a full time engagement unlike in the past, where it was done as a part-time job by people of other professions. Even with these transformations, some are criticized to preach water but instead drinking wine without regret. They argue that as people we all fall short of our expectations and invoke selective scripts to justify their actions. It is not a shock that pagans are increasing day by day since there is a lack of role models. However, in some societies, the clergy is highly regarded and accorded great respect, for example, the Catholic priests. They are viewed as God's representatives on earth, and some have carried themselves with this respect. Society has paved way for them to minister the word without much a do. Some go through trying times as facing deaths such as the martyrs who were burnt to death in an east African country in the 80s. To others who did not receive the calling, it becomes like walking on egg shells. It is no secret that priesthood attracts a huge salary and the priests are some of the richest people around. They pay tithes with other people's tithes.

Plastic surgeons specialize in the art of facilitating surgeries to change appearances. They make colossal sums of money especially in the world of celebrities where appearances are vital. They get to witness weird ideas from their clients. Some want changes in their bottoms, breasts, faces and other body parts that may seem unpleasant to them. Their job may be tricky, especially for Christians, who have biblical restrictions as to changing any body part as it is written that everyone is beautifully and wonderfully made. This becomes hard for them in terms of judgement as to whether they are doing the right thing. It is ironical when they start citing religion, since a surgery is a surgery irrespective of the conditions that prevail. Whether the person was at the verge of death does not change anything. The society views them as life savers, while believers condemn them for going against the holy word.

A newscaster is involved in a variety of duties ranging from developing news and broadcasting them. The newscaster will be responsible for coordination of information in a station. The newscaster will have a hectic responsibility of gathering information so as to broadcast to the public about the daily sports, keep people updated about the weather and current political events among many others. The society expects them to give accurate information without flaws. Failure to do this has in many cases led to grievances being forwarded even to court of laws. This mainly affects weather broadcasters who give conflicting information and their predictions fail to pass. There are people who rely on this information to determine their dress codes. Reputation highly matters in this field.

A stockbroker has a vital role to ensure that trading is effectively carried out between a buyer and a seller. They play a big role as middlemen who ensure we get the stocks we want at a price that is favourable to us. The smooth running of the stock exchange is facilitated by these people. Their role is very vital and the shares cannot be sold without them. The stock exchange would be then disorganised and not meaningful. It is unfortunate though that with the online bidding jobs have been lost and their importance is declining through technological advancements. It is ironical since technology should be a good thing but, in this case, it has negative impacts.
